

Exhibits I-1 and I-2

Displacements This Year and Estimated Displacements Next Year

Exhibit I-1 reports information applicable to households displaced for reasons other than destroying or removing a dwelling unit as reported in Exhibit H-1. An example of a displacement reported in Exhibit I-1 would be a household permanently displaced in order to substantially rehabilitate the housing unit. Exhibit I-2 reports similar information about agencies' estimates of the number of displacements that may occur over the next reporting period.

For the reporting year, Exhibit I-1 shows that agencies displaced 78 households and that most (67) were non-elderly households. By income category, the majority of displaced households were low income (37 were very low and 15 were low). Information on the number of dwelling units constructed toward meeting agencies' replacement needs, within the required four years, is contained in Exhibits E-1, F-3, and F-4.

Exhibit I-2 reflects estimates reported by 26 agencies about displacements expected to occur next year. For the next reporting year, agencies estimate displacing 343 households. Most households are expected to be non-elderly (283) and below moderate income (321).
